2022 DATA REPORT

January 2023

Recent Situation

Situation of present economic developments in first semester

Since 1969, CQL | The Council on Quality and Leadership has been a leader in working with human service organizations and systems to continuously define, measure, and improve quality of life and quality of services for youth, adults, and older adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities, as well as people with psychiatric disabilities. CQL offers accreditation, training, certification, research, and consultation services to agencies and service systems that share our vision of dignity, opportunity, and community for all people.

Mission

CQL is dedicated to the definition, measurement, and improvement of personal quality of life.

Vision

A world of dignity, opportunity, and community for all people.

Methods

This report includes analysis of many different aspects of CQL's accreditation process (2022) conducted in the North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division, including data from Basic Assurances[®] reviews and Personal Outcome Measures[®] interviews.

The Basic Assurances[®]

For the Basic Assurances[®] review, provider organizations conduct a self-assessment of their alignment with the Basic Assurances[®] standards. The Basic Assurances[®] contain 46 Indicators which are divided into 10 Factors. The Basic Assurances[®] measure the organization's systems and practices for ensuring individuals are safe, healthy, and their rights are preserved. The Basic Assurances[®] are self-assessed by the organization and submitted prior to the on-site visit. CQL staff conduct on-site and/or virtual activities to validate the responses submitted and provide feedback or recommendations. This process occurs through meetings with organizational staff as well as review of policies, procedures, and other supporting evidence noted in the assessment. Focus groups are also conducted.

All available data from 2022 ($n = 8$) organizational assessments were entered into SPSS.27 for cleaning, aggregation, and analysis. Please note there were two systems accreditations this year however, no decisions were made on probes and indicators for one because of a change in how Systems Accreditations are done so it was excluded from the sample. Since there is only one systems accreditation remaining, the systems accreditation specific analysis was not conducted.

The Personal Outcome Measures[®]

The Personal Outcome Measures[®], a person-centered quality of life tool, have been shown to be strong measures of quality. The measures provide information that helps to identify which supports are working well, regardless of how resources have been allocated. The Personal Outcome Measures[®] are unique in that they focus on the achievement of outcomes as a result of supports, rather than the process utilized to deliver those supports. The Personal Outcome Measures[®] assess the impact of supports on the quality of life of the people receiving those services and supports. The number of outcomes present in people's lives is a metric gauging the quality of life for the person. The number and types of supports present measure the degree to which each person's quality of life is recognized and supported by the provider organization(s).

The Personal Outcome Measures[®] data included in this report was collected by both non-certified and certified interviewers. A total of 345 people were included in this data set (2022) for the North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division. All available data was entered into SPSS.27 for cleaning, aggregation, and analysis.

Note. Highlighted is where there are significant differences between the certified and non-certified interviewers. While some of this may be due to individual differences amongst the people interviewed, it does suggest more training is needed for non-certified interviewers in these areas.

Discussion

Basic Assurances® Data

There were a number of areas where the North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division organizations excelled on the Basic Assurances® and scored significantly higher than the national benchmarks. Compared to organizations in the rest of the country, North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division organizations were especially more likely to have the following indicators present (CQL review):

- Decision-making supports are provided to people as needed (1e system and practice);
- People have supports to manage their own health care (5a system and practice); and,
- The organization upholds due process requirements (1d system).

There were also a number of opportunities where the North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division organizations had indicators present less often than the national benchmarks. The following indicators had the largest gaps compared to national benchmarks, and represent opportunities for training and possible systems change:

- A comprehensive plan describes the methods and procedures for monitoring basic assurances (10b system and practice);
- People access quality health care (5b system);
- The organization treats people with psychoactive medications for mental health needs consistent with national standards of care (8d practice); and,
- Routine inspections ensure that environments are sanitary and hazard free (6d system).

As part of our analysis, we also explored differences between North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division organizations' self-assessments and CQL reviews. There were a number of areas where organizations overestimated the presence of indicators on the self-assessment compared to what CQL reviewers found. Those areas that agencies most frequently overestimated on their self-assessment included:

- People access quality health care (5b system);
- The organization respects people's concerns and responds accordingly (2b system and practice);
- People's individual plans lead to person-centered and person-directed services and supports (8a practice); and,
- A comprehensive plan describes the methods and procedures for monitoring basic assurances (10b).

When interpreting these results, it should be noted that the sample size for the North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division for 2022 was only eight organizations.

Personal Outcome Measures® Data

The Personal Outcome Measures® outcomes most frequently present for the North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division interviews (using data from both certified and non-certified interviewers) were:

- People are respected;
- People are safe;
- People are treated fairly;
- People choose personal goals; and,
- People use their environments.

The least frequently present outcomes were:

- People have intimate relationships;
- People have friends;
- People perform different social roles;
- People live in integrated environments; and,
- People participate in the life of the community.

The most frequently present organizational supports were:

- People are free from abuse and neglect;
- People are respected;
- People are treated fairly;
- People are safe; and,
- People experience continuity and security.

The least frequently present organizational supports were:

- People have intimate relationships;
- People live in integrated environments;
- People perform different social roles;
- People choose where and with whom to live; and,
- People have friends.

Compared to the national benchmarks, North Dakota had significantly more outcomes present and supports in place. However, we would suggest interpreting these findings with caution. We believe this gap is largely attributed to the fact that the national data is from certified interviewers only, while the North Dakota Developmental Disabilities Division 2022 data is mostly (91%) from non-certified interviewers. Non-certified interviewers tend to overestimate the presence of outcomes and supports compared to certified interviewers. In fact, when we compared North Dakota's certified and non-certified interviews we found large gaps, many of which aligned with the most significant differences compared to the national benchmarks. As such, we suggest there be an effort to conduct more certified interviews, as well as to provide additional training for non-certified interviewers.
